SPIRIT OF THE MOUNTAINS

Did you know that every mountain has its spirit? Whoever mistreats a mountain will be punished and driven away by its spirit. Be sure not to call him, as he really dislikes being summoned. You will make him happy by not doing any of the following: shouting in the forest, frightening the animals, treading on the plants.

Sprite is accompanied by a bird of prey.

He's got a head in the clouds.

A.

MaSTER Of FiRE

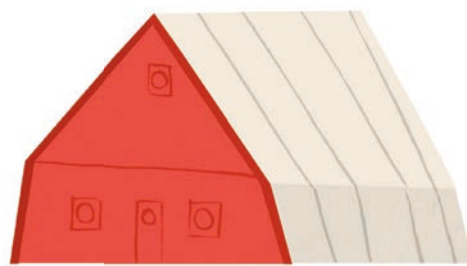

He jumps from bush to bush, or beam to beam. When in spiteful mood, he drops some of his fiery hair on the wood (B). What a blaze that causes! But his tamer younger brother will serve you well – by starting a fire in the hearth or lighting candles (A).

CoRN MuNChKiN

He looks like an ear of corn with short little legs, clever little hands and a tuft of corn-coloured hair on the top of his head. He watches over vast fields of corn and helps the plants grow well. Maybe it's a secret, but we heard recently that he loves the cinema, popcorn and iced cola. So next time you go to a good film, why not take him along?

Nicely ripe.

FIRE LLAMA

Like every llama, the fire llama is cute. But if you make her angry, she spits fire, not saliva. She guards the secrets of the ancient South American Indians. If a potential treasure-thief dares approach her, she will spit fire at him.

IF YOU MEET HER FURIOUS, YOU BETTER TAKE TO YOUR HEELS.

Spitting fire.

SOMBReRO BOGLE

He is a white, droplet-shaped creature with big ears and an even bigger sombrero. He floats above the plains of South America feeling sorry about his lost poncho, challenging everyone who crosses his path about the missing garment. Poor thing...

GhOSt Of a FrOZeN ExPLORER

A man wrapped in furs, with a red face and an icicle instead of a nose. He walks along the shore on the lookout for a ship that would take him to warmer climes. His occasional unhappy sighs unleash a polar storm. You can help him by suggesting you build a snowman together – the work will warm him up enough for the next 100 years.

KING Of THE PENGUINS

He wears a headband of many colours to serve as a crown. Sometimes he wears woollen mittens, too. Wise and just, he rules over all penguins. Although he is very old, he enjoys playing in the snow like a young penguin. If you meet him, take him for a sledge ride.

He loves sledging.

Respectable
one.

COLD- SENSITIVE SkeLETON

What's that rattling sound?
It's a skeleton, of course!
There are many skeletons in the world, but only one of them is really cold. That's because he's super-sensitive.
He is forever walking this way and that, trying and failing to get warm. He's always like ice, poor thing.

Frozen
to the bone.

SNOW ANGEL

The Snow Angel has a fur hat on his head and snow boots on his feet. He rolls about in the snow, laughing until his sides hurt.
And no wonder! His task here on Earth is to give people pleasure. And he's everywhere!
You can find 'snow angels' – the impressions he leaves in the snow – in front of your house whenever snow has fallen. Try to catch sight of him in the early morning, when everyone else is still asleep, or late at night, when the world is happily relaxing.
Maybe you'll be lucky!
