This or That?
OVER or UNDER?

Matty loves to compete. Do you? Will you help him? Matty's kindergarten is having a treasure hunt today. But Matty sometimes confuses what is above and what is below, what is in front and what is behind, and so on. His teacher says that the first clue on the way to the treasure is IN the red toy box.

Matty loves to compete. Do you? Will you help him? Matty's kindergarten is having a treasure hunt today. But Matty sometimes confuses what is above and what is below, what is in front and what is behind, and so on. His teacher says that the first clue on the way to the treasure is IN the red toy box.

That's right, this is the red box. After Matty lifts the lid, he finds this note INSIDE:

Another clue is waiting UNDER the green table.

Matty heads straight to the dining tables. Here the children paint and eat their snacks and lunch. But now Matty is looking for a clue. It should be UNDER one of the green tables.

This paper is pinned up OVER the green table. Matty must find a paper UNDER the green table.

That's right, this paper is UNDER the green table. The path to the treasure leads to the children's kitchen. Look BEHIND the teapot.

Matty has walked ACROSS the plank. He has done it – he has found the treasure!

Someone has made a jungle gym here. Wow! Matty can reach the treasure by walking ACROSS a plank of wood.

Thanks for your help. Now Matty will be more confident when telling what is where. It's not so difficult, is it? Matty will share the found treasure with his friends.

OVER or UNDER?

There is hidden treasure at the kindergarten, and Matty embarks on a journey of adventure to find it! Each clue should take him a little closer to it. But Matty sometimes confuses what is over with what is under, and what is in front with what is behind. Getting prepositions right can be hard. Can you help him?

This interactive book with pull tabs teaches children spatial orientation through play, as well as training their attention. At the end of the journey a sweet reward awaits!
